Metropolitan Atlanta Transit Authority The Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority (MARTA) is a county-wide transit authority that operates bus and rail lines throughout the state of Georgia. The five-county service area includes DeKalb, Gwinnett, Henry, Rockdale and Clayton counties. MARTA is the third-largest mass transit agency in the United States, behind the New York Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the Bay Area Rapid Transit District in California. History For much of its history, MARTA lacked an official name. In the early 1970s, a group of civic leaders chose the name Atlanta Regional Transit Authority (ART), but it was never officially adopted. In December 1974, six local county governments that already operated transit systems adopted a single-county transit agency. From 1976 to 1980, MARTA conducted a 10-year study on urban mass transportation issues in the Atlanta metropolitan area. The study led to a series of decisions to improve transit within the MARTA service area. The final decisions were adopted by vote of the MARTA Board on November 7, 1980. For political reasons, the agency's name is written with capital letters. Most other mass transit authorities across the United States are lower-case, and MARTA is the exception. In 2015, the agency opened the Spirewell Transit Center, a transit hub in Northwest Atlanta that provides connections between MARTA and the Atlanta Streetcar. Current service areas MARTA offers service to the following regions: Metropolitan Atlanta Atlanta Hartsfield International Airport and Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport BeltLine (formerly ATL Commuter Rail) Georgia World Congress Center and Five Points MARTA Station Hartsfield MARTA Station and the downtown interchange with the Atlanta Streetcar Marietta MARTA Station and the downtown interchange with the Atlanta Streetcar Midtown MARTA Station Peachtree Center MARTA Station Sandy Springs MARTA Station Perimeter Center MARTA Station Morningside MARTA Station and the downtown interchange with the Atlanta Streetcar Roswell MARTA Station Perimeter MARTA Station Sandy Springs MARTA Station Gwinnett County Briarcliff MARTA Station Dacula MARTA Station Duluth MARTA Station McDonough MARTA Station Savannah MARTA Station Sandy Springs MARTA Station Suwannee MARTA

What's New in the Photoshop 2022 (Version 23.0)?

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a system of measuring the flow rate of an exhaust gas and, more particularly, to a method and apparatus for measuring the flow rate of the exhaust gas that is mounted on an exhaust gas flow path of a vehicle so that the exhaust gas generated from an engine is discharged to the atmosphere. 2. Description of Related Art Recent efforts to regulate exhaust gas have resulted in the development of devices and systems that lower the emission rate of undesirable components from an engine through a process of measuring the flow rate of exhaust gas in real time. The measurement of the flow rate of exhaust gas is generally performed using a temperature difference method using heat capacity or a thermal conductivity difference method using the heat transfer characteristic. The temperature difference method uses the temperature differential between an upstream-side reference gas and a down-stream side, resulting in the stabilization of the temperature of the reference gas and reducing the noise for both the thermometer and the sensing resistor constituting a detector. Accordingly, this method is limited in that it can be applied to the measurement of the flow rate of exhaust gas. In order to resolve such a problem, a thermal conductivity difference method has been suggested in which a heating resistor of the exhaust gas is set to the outside of the exhaust pipe to measure the flow rate of the exhaust gas via a change in the heat transfer characteristic of the exhaust gas, thereby overcoming the above-described problem. However, it is very difficult to accurately maintain the temperature of the heat transfer resistor as required for the detection, that is, more than one minute, particularly at low temperatures. The above information disclosed in this Background section is only for enhancement of understanding of the background of the invention and therefore it may contain information that does not form the prior art that is already known in this country to a person of ordinary skill in the art.[Effect of short-term administration of orlistat on insulin sensitivity in overweight obese subjects].

To evaluate the impact of orlistat on insulin sensitivity and lipid metabolism. 45 male overweight obese subjects aged 35-60 years were randomized into 2 groups. Group 1 received orlistat during a 3-month double-blind, placebo-controlled trial; group 2 - placebo during the same trial. All patients had obesity [body mass index (BMI) > 30 kg/m²] of unknown etiology. In group 1 fasting triglyceride levels decreased by 15.5% compared to group 2 (p
