The characters in "The Leisure of Grisaia" are all new, and so is the world of "The Manner of the Evening." If you love the "Grisaia" light novels, then you're sure to appreciate the new side story that ties up some story threads left open in the original. ▼Story◎ When you think of the "Grisaia" series, the setting of "The Leisure of Grisaia" might not immediately spring to mind. However, there's a reason why the various light novels start off in this location. This time around, the characters are all attending Mihama Girls' Academy, an elite private girls' school located in the fictitious country of 'Grisaia.' The girls are all enthusiastic about their upcoming prom festival, which will be a chance to show off the talents and playfulness of their personalities. The festival is going well, when an unexpected incident intrudes on the party and sends it spiraling out of control. As a result, the entire school gets dragged into a bizarre world ruled by the god of "grisaia." "The Leisure of Grisaia" continues the series' unique character-driven visual novel series; in this case, it's Michiru who takes the lead in this light novel. She tries to decide on a new club activity with the help of Sachi and her other friends, but it's harder than it sounds. Be sure to keep an eye out for some extra CG scenes not included with the standard releases! The game is a relay driving.In this mode,you need to hit and overtake the enemy or smash it,in order to pass faster. So far so good? But...The road now is divided into 50 sections.And you can send one of your characters to hit and overcome the enemy. As soon as you complete a section,you can choose from 2 options to win that section. Its not a simple race with a single line.You will have the opportunity to choose from 3 different paths and be able to swap your competitors,in order to win a race. And if you change the path,the bonus multiplies,so you will be able to overtake your opponents sooner or later. Would you like to help us win some bonuses. Has a New Website! Share: This post has been years in the making, but today Facebook game developers led by Hawken developer Articy Games have announced that they will now open-source FPS Hawken's proprietary PhysX engine and use it as the basis for a new open-source D3D12-focused Daedalus engine. Which means the next time you try to pistol whip your way through Autumn Grove you should probably be using D3D12 instead of D3D11 and DX11 or DX12 instead of DX10. Of course, this is a big shift for Articy's parent company, Madfinger Games, which was the developers behind Yooka-Laylee. It's also a significant shift for the Daedalus D3D11-to-DX12 port that has the kind of durability that might make it worth a long line of update versions. You might not know it, but the difference between D3D10 and D3D11 is not all the engines that don't support D3D10. The Hawaii engine is the only open-source D3D11 port, and Daedalus is the only open-source port of D3D11 that is going to be usable for anything other than the above. Which is to say you might not actually get Daedalus' latest version 1.0, which is listed as "unstable" and "underactive development". As for Hawken, we might be unlikely to see any improvement on the game under the new banner. Articy has recently been focusing on the Daedalus engine, so the addition of an entirely new entity leaves little time for a post-obit of Hawken 2.0. It would almost certainly have to be completely reworked, since Hawken 2.1 was a complete overhaul. On the other hand, the PhysX engine is the core of Hawken's physics, and Madfinger has mentioned that not all of it will be open-sourced. The reasoning is to make sure it's still adopted by other game developers, but Madfinger's success in the Unreal Engine pushed off a new version of its own engine for a year, which has resulted in Daedalus becoming kind of…a thing. So we might see some improvements to the graphics engine (I have concerns about this) and possibly some improvements to Soteria: Imperiums: Greek Wars is a real time strategy (RTS) game. Set in ancient times, the game features new Greek city buildings and brings you more freedom than in the original Empire. Will you be Caesar? Be a leader of Roman legions, lead your legions to glory in battles and to keep your leadership! You will have to build a big army, organize your legions, choose the right kinds of buildings and soldiers, but also hire the best possible mercenaries. Are you ready to take part in the big games in Roman and Greek history? Is your strategy good enough to defeat the enemy? As you progress you will encounter a variety of new enemy cultures. Some of them fight like the Romans, the other like the Greeks. Are you ready to fight for your empire and to win the games? Your quest starts when the emperor appoints you as the leader of a legion and orders you to defend Rome in a tribal war. 2 or 4 players online. 2 new species of enemies: Amazons and Gauls.
